Anticipating the Final Countdown: Reflections Before the Last Exam Day in 2014.

On the 24th of March, I was filled with mixed emotions as my final exam was approaching, marking the end of my school days.

I couldn’t help but feel a deep sense of nostalgia and a strong attachment to my school. I knew I would miss everything about it – my classroom, the familiar bench I sat on, even the moments of being scolded by Prici. The lunch break, where I would eagerly try to catch a glimpse of Pradeep through the windows, held a special place in my heart. It was hard to fathom that these moments would soon be a thing of the past.
